the first volume of a world renowned scholar s long awaited qur an commentary now available in english angelika neuwirth s six volume commentary published originally in germany offers a historical and philological analysis of the form structure and semantic message of each of the 114 qur anic suras it brings together the fruits of the past hundred years of modern scholarship and provides access to the aesthetic theological linguistic and semantic background required to appreciate the unique novelty force and historical position of the qur an contextualizing the qur anic message in the broader world of late antiquity it bridges the gaps between the inner islamic scholarly world and the academy skillfully translated by samuel wilder this first volume focuses on the meccan suras the earliest and often the most aesthetically striking and compelling part of the corpus of qur anic proclamations in this book angelika neuwirth provides a new approach to understanding the founding text of islam typical exegesis of the qur an treats the text teleologically as a fait accompli finished text or as a replica or summary of the bible in arabic instead neuwirth approaches the qur an as the product of a specific community in the late antique arabian peninsula one which was exposed to the wider worlds of the byzantine and sasanian empires and to the rich intellectual traditions of rabbinic judaism early christianity and gnosticism a central goal of the book is to eliminate the notion of the qur an as being a historical she argues that it is in fact highly aware of its place in late antiquity and is capable of yielding valuable historical information by emphasizing the liturgical function of the qur an neuwirth allows readers to see the text as an evolving oral tradition within the community before it became collected and codified as a book this analysis sheds much needed light on the development of the qur an s historical theological and political outlook the book s final chapters analyze the relationship of the qur an to the bible to arabic poetic traditions and more generally to late antique culture and rhetorical forms by providing a new introduction to the qur an one that uniquely challenges current ideas about its emergence and development the qur an and late antiquity bridges the gap between eastern and western approaches to this sacred text islam and its past jāhiliyya late antiquity and the qur an brings together scholars from various disciplines and fields to consider islamic revelation with particular focus on the qur an the collection provides a wide ranging survey of the development and current state of qur anic studies in the western academy it shows how interest in the field has recently grown how the ways in which it is cultivated have changed how it has ramified and how difficult it now is for any one scholar to keep abreast of it chapters explore the milieu in which the meccan component of the qur an made its appearance the general question is what we can say about that milieu by combining a careful reading of the relevant parts of the qur an with what we know about the religious trends of late antiquity in arabia and elsewhere more specifically the issue is what we can learn in this way about the manner in which the polytheists of the qur an related to the jewish and christian traditions were they godfearers in the sense familiar from the study of ancient judaism it looks at the qur an as a text of late antiquity not just considering those features of it that could be seen as normal in that context but also identifying what is innovative about it against the late antique background here the focus is on the believers rather than the polytheists the volume also engages in different ways with notions of monotheism in pre islamic arabia this collection provides a broad survey of what has been happening in the field and concrete illustrations of some of the more innovative lines of research that have recently been pursued islam is often seen as a religious tradition in which hell does not play a particularly prominent role this volume challenges this hackneyed view locating hell in islamic traditions is the first book length analytic study of the muslim hell it maps out a broad spectrum of islamic attitudes toward hell from the quranic vision s of hell to the pious cultivation of the fear of the afterlife theological speculations metaphorical and psychological understandings and the modern transformations of hell contributors frederick colby daniel de smet christiane gruber jon hoover mohammad hassan khalil christian lange christopher melchert simon o meara samuela pagani tommaso tesei roberto tottoli wim raven and richard van leeuwen this volume is the first trilateral exploration of medieval scriptural interpretation the vast literature written during the medieval period is one of both great diversity and numerous cross cultural similarities these essays explore this rich heritage of biblical and qur anic interpretation this latest edition of discovering the qur an includes a new preface by the author used by students around the world as a reliable guide to reading a translation of the qur an it shows how the qur an is experienced by muslims describing the rhythmic and rhyme scheme structures the context in which it is heard the part played by learning by heart and the importance of calligraphy it is also about the qur an and its relationship to muhammed as well as helping to divine the ordering of the surahs or chapters in an english speaking world newly sensitized to islam and its believers discovering the qur an will be an invaluable tool to greater understanding a concise dictionary of koranic arabic is the first dictionary of its kind to appear in well over a century i e after a stretch of time during which thanks to the endeavors of both muslim and western scholars tremendous progress has been made towards the exact linguistic understanding of the noble koran one of the most important texts of all humankind this dictionary presents the entire koranic lexical material in an easily accessible arrangement with glosses in english based primarily yet critically on the german translation by r paret with certain new proposals by the compiler the entries are accompanied by a selective in some instances exhaustive listing of their places of occurrence in the text and by the citation of a great number of relevant textual segments the main part of the dictionary the lexicon of roots contains the nouns and verbs arranged by their consonantal roots as is traditional in arabic lexicography this is followed by a categorized list of proper names provided in order to enable the user to look up e.g. which prophets, which scriptures or which pagan idols are mentioned in the text. The third section, pronouns and particles, is meant to provide extensive information on the syntactic structure of the text. In it, all the lexical items that, because of not being root-derived, could not be included in the lexicon of roots as a special feature. Additions to the lexicon from the canonical readings surveys the additional lexical material contained in the recognized variants, the so-called seven readings of the standard text. A further feature of the dictionary is a listing of certain major and minor lexical problems arising during the close reading of the text. The dictionary is supplemented by an extensive appendix, which contains various lists, some semantically, some morphologically defined, that appear to be of special interest, such as the nouns and noun phrases referring to God, the numerals, the relative forms, the designations of Judgment Day and the names of the suras and their lengths. The dictionary ends with a bibliography of works of general importance, supplemented by an index referring the user to the great number of citations of special studies embedded in the individual articles. The dictionary aims at reflecting the state of the art of Koranic philology and so at providing both a guideline for the student of Arabic and Islamics and a research tool for the specialized scholar.
