in the 18 chapters in this volume of contemporary studies in economic and financial analysis expert contributors gather together to examine the extent and characteristics of forensic accounting a field which has been practiced for many years but is still not internationally regulated yet this international exploration on different economic systems provides a comprehensive account which brings a wide range of countries to the forefront in terms of both comparability and accountability this study shines a light on the differences in systems between states and provides information to equip readers to minimize those differences contemporary studies in economic and financial analysis csef 104 dedicates 16 chapters in articles and studies on contemporary issues of business economics and finance authors contributed from the international applied social science congress held in turkey this book is a collection of some of the papers that were presented during a nato advanced research workshop arw on intelligent systems safety reliability and maintainability issues that was held in kusadasi turkey during august 24 28 1992 attendance at this workshop was mainly by invitation only drawing people internationally representing industry government and the academic community many of the participants were internationally recognized leaders in the topic of the workshop the purpose of the arw was to bring together a highly distinguished group of people with the express purpose of debating where the issues of safety reliability and maintainability place direct and tangible constraints on the development of intelligent systems as a consequence one of the major debating points in the arw was the definition of intelligence intelligent behaviour and their relation to complex dynamic systems two major conclusions evolved from the arw are 1 a continued need exists to develop formal theoretical frameworks for the architecture of such systems together with a reflection on the concept of intelligence 2 there is a need to focus greater attention to the role that the human play in controlling intelligent systems the workshop began by considering the typical features of an intelligent system the complexity associated with multi resolutional architectures was then discussed leading to the identification of a necessity for the use of a combinatorial synthesis approach this was followed by a session on human interface issues despite its increasing importance the verification and validation of the human machine interface is perhaps the most overlooked aspect of system development although much has been written about the design and development process very little organized information is available on how to verify and validate highly complex and highly coupled dynamic systems inability to evaluate such systems adequately may become the limiting factor in our ability to employ systems that our technology and knowledge allow us to design this volume based on a nato advanced science institute held in 1992 is designed to provide guidance for the verification and validation of all highly complex and coupled systems air traffic control is used as an example to ensure that the theory is described in terms that will allow its implementation but the results can be applied to all complex and coupled systems the volume presents the knowledge and theory in a format that will allow readers from a wide variety of backgrounds to apply it to the systems for which they are responsible the emphasis is on domains where significant advances have been made in the methods of identifying potential problems and in new testing methods and tools also emphasized are techniques to identify the assumptions on which a system is built and to spot their weaknesses
