consider a more attractive investment Justify your choice Answers Exercise 1 a See attached balance sheet b The current ratio measures a companys ability to meet its shortterm obligations A higher ratio generally indicates better liquidity The debttoequity ratio measures the extent to which a company is financed by debt A higher ratio suggests greater financial risk Exercise 2 a See attached income statement b Gross profit is the difference between revenue and COGS while operating income is the difference between gross profit and operating expenses Gross profit reflects the profitability of the companys core business operations while operating income considers all operating costs providing a broader picture of the companys overall profitability 4 Exercise 3 a See attached statement of cash flows b Net cash flow from operating activities represents the cash generated from the companys daytoday operations A positive net cash flow indicates the company is generating sufficient cash to sustain its business Exercise 4 a Company D appears to be in a stronger financial position than Company E It has a higher current ratio indicating better liquidity and a lower debttoequity ratio suggesting lower financial risk Company D also has higher profit margins reflecting greater profitability b Based on the provided ratios Company D would be a more attractive investment Its stronger financial health and greater profitability suggest it has better growth potential and less risk compared to Company E Conclusion By working through these exercises you will gain a deeper understanding of financial statements and their importance in business decisionmaking Remember that the financial statements are just one piece of the puzzle when assessing a companys financial health Its essential to consider other factors such as industry trends competitive landscape and management quality before making any investment decisions
