bernard alford reviews the changing role and diminishing influence of britain within the international economy across the century that saw the apogee and loss of britain s empire and her transformation from globe straddling superpower to off shore and indecisive member of the european community he explores the relationship between empire and economy looks at economic performance against economic policy and compares britain through and beyond the thatcher years with her european partners america and japan in assessing whether britain s economic decline has been absolute or merely relative he also illuminates the broader history of the world economy itself constructions such as make an accusation against or give one s approval for can be seen as stretched versions of simple verbs such as accuse or approve of what is the precise linguistic nature of stretched verbs and how many basic types are there what kinds of grammatical connections are involved and what lexical limits are there on these constructions what is their precise semantic value these are some of the questions that this book sets out to answer in its investigation of stretched verb constructions this book analyses regional interventions in african conflict spaces by engaging with political discourse theory interventions are a performance of agency but what happens if interventions are performed by forces that scholars have hardly ever considered as relevant agents in this regard based on a study of regional politics towards the crises in burundi and zimbabwe the book analyses how these interventions shaped and changed the emerging regional interveners the book engages political discourse theory proposing an understanding of intervention as a field in which multiple and heterogeneous interpretations of the violence the crisis and the future post conflict order meet it is not hard to imagine that this encounter is not harmonious per se but full of frictions by making use of political discourse theory as a grammar for studying the complexity of an intervention the focus is directed to the emerging subjectivities of regional interveners this enables a view of regional interventions that neither reduces their subjectivity to universalist categories associated with liberal peace nor overenthusiastically embraces them as the solution to all problems this book will be of interest to students of international intervention discourse theory african politics war and conflict studies security studies and ir
