falcons have been exploited by humans as food source ornamental purposes or for the falconry practices there is a large historical literature in which falcons were often mentioned but always along broader topics mainly ancient falconry and poetry this book is the result of a parallel project developed during the preparation of behavioral ecology of western palearctic falcons published by springer in 2020 the main aim is to use archaeological and historical sources on falcons to delineate the past distribution and population ecology of these predators in the western palearctic ecozone ultimately the approach to the data is aimed at defining the population dynamics of falcons over time the relationship conflict with human populations is also placed in this context by putting falcons as a central subject of study this book outlines their path in the western palearctic from the pleistocene to modern ornithology the concept of viewing historical change as a cyclical process is analyzed beginning with the works of polybius historian of the roman empire and ending with machiavelli with an examination of the biblical concept of historical change this volume is designed to bridge a gap in the current theoretical debate about the nature scope and relevance of postmodern perspectives in the humanist and social sciences in eastern and western europe while the debate has been reasonably comprehensive and certainly abrasive in western european and anglophone countries it has signally failed to incorporate the viewpoints of eastern european scholars and intellectuals even the current appropriation of mikhael bakhtin as a prophet of the postmodern is paradoxically a monologic engagement with his thought rather than a dialogic encounter of cultures doubtless different historical experiences ideology and social aspirations go some way to account for the weariness of eastern europe with postmodern challenge and its glad embrace by western scholars the volume comprises some fifteen essays by leading historians literary theorists and social scientists from western and eastern europe and america it has a threefold aim firstly to illuminate the distinctiveness of current western and eastern european theorizing about history and society secondly to reveal points of tension and disagreement and finally to open up a space for a meeting of seemingly incompatible worlds based on the award winning six volume work by richard taruskin the oxford history of western music college edition presents the most up to date and comprehensive history of western music available scott c martin examines leisure as a contested cultural space in which nineteenth century americans articulated and developed ideas about ethnicity class gender and community this new perspective demonstrates how leisure and sociability mediated the transition from an agricultural to an industrial society martin argues persuasively that southwestern pennsylvanians used leisure activities to create identities and define values in a society being transformed by market expansion the transportation revolution brought new commercial entertainments and recreational opportunities but also fragmented and privatized customary patterns of communal leisure by using leisure as a window on the rapid changes sweeping through the region martin shows how southwestern pennsylvanians used voluntary associations private parties and public gatherings to construct social identities better suited to their altered circumstances the prosperous middle class devised amusements to distinguish them from workers who in turn resisted reformersÆ attempts to constrain their use of free time ethnic and racial minorities used holiday observances and traditional celebrations to define their place in american society while women tested the boundaries of the domestic sphere through participation in church fairs commercial recreation and other leisure activities this study illuminates the cultural history of the region and offers broader insights into perceptions of free time leisure and community in antebellum america
