a unique contribution to america's encounter with holocaust memory that links the use of nazi imagery to liberal politics the unique human awareness of our own mortality enables us to ensure our perpetuation beyond death through our impact on others this continuity of life has been profoundly shaken by the advent of wars of mass destruction genocide and the ever present threat of nuclear annihilation in the broken connection robert jay lifton one of america's foremost thinkers and preeminent psychiatrists explores the inescapable connections between death and life the psychiatric disorders that arise from these connections and the advent of the nuclear age which has jeopardized any attempts to ensure the perpetuation of the self beyond death this book builds on robert jay lifton's theory of psychic numbing and takes madness as a guiding metaphor it shows that public perceptions of the bomb are a kaleidoscope of ever changing ideas and images recent changes in public awareness only signal new symptoms of this public madness symptoms unwittingly fostered by the antinuclear movement since the newest nuclear images follow the same psychological pattern as their predecessors they are likely to lead us deeper into nuclear madness chernus offers new interpretations of four major theorists in the psychology of religion paul tillich r d laing mircea eliade and james hillman to trace the roots of nuclear madness back to the onset of modernity when the west gained technological mastery at the price of losing religious imagination and ontological security the author develops an interpretation of lifton's own thought as an ontological and religious psychology drawing on the work of eliade and hillman he goes on to suggest that madness reflects a repressed desire to transform life by opening up the floodgates of imagination a conscious cultivation of the play of imagination can lead the way through madness to sanity and peace but imagination can only respond to the nuclear threat if it is acted out in a new brand of peace activism that blends pragmatic politics with psychological and religious transformation
