realistic and immersive simulations of land sea and sky are requisite to the military use of visual simulation for mission planning until recently the simulation of natural environments has been limited first of all by the pixel resolution of visual displays visual simulation of those natural environments has also been limited by the scarcity of detailed and accurate physical descriptions of them our aim has been to change all that to this end many of us have labored in adjacent fields of psych ogy engineering human factors and computer science our efforts in these areas were occasioned by a single question how distantly can fast jet pilots discern the aspect angle of an opposing aircraft in visual simulation this question needs some ela ration it concerns fast jets because those simulations involve the representation of high speeds over wide swaths of landscape it concerns pilots since they begin their careers with above average acuity of vision as a population and it concerns aspect angle which is as much as to say that the three dimensional orientation of an opposing aircraft relative to one s own as revealed by motion and solid form v vi preface the single question is by no means simple it demands a criterion for eye limiting resolution in simulation that notion is a central one to our study though much abused in general discussion the question at hand as it was posed in the 1990s has been accompanied by others
